

Mockup review:

Designer: Cheryl Kao

Creative Director: Cecilia Liu

After looking at the initial mockup, I really like the way that the images are used alongside the different pops of color

The typeface used is very appropriate for the content

I would make the body text a little bit larger and increase the size of the margin

I would also like the images to be moved around the page a little bit more and enlarged, because I want this site to showcase the different approaches in a visual manner and I want them to be the central focus

I like how the division between western and eastern approaches is clear and that the separation between the two is evidence.

I would like the titles in the navigation bars to be a little bit larger as well.
